Convention

By THOMAS H. WATLING
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
OTTAWA, July 5.—An eleventh hour switch in the Conservative leadership set-up has developed, and the result will probably be that Senator Meighen will run for the leadership backed by Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, K.C., Hon. C. H. Cahan, K.C., and other old line diehards.

CREDIT HOUSES MAY BE OPENED AT EARLY DATE

Hon. E. C. Manning Says
The Government Hopes To Give Exchange Medium

Early establishment of credit houses in this province was seen following announcement in Calgary by Hon. Ernest C. Manning, minister of trade and industry, that "we are hoping to give a medium of exchange of your own."

It is believed the credit houses will supply this medium, and the medium will be property certificates, as were circulated two years ago only without the stamp of a total of $250,000 was circulated in this form of exchange on the former occasion.

TALKED AT CAUCUS

The whole question of credit and supplying of services to take the place of the branch banks being withdrawn from the province, was under discussion at the caucus. Credit members of the legislature caucus held last week.

M. L. Ewing, M.L.A., Edmonton, and chairman of the caucus, issued a statement in which the credit members were being made to assume services if the banks continued withdrawal of branches, that treasury and trade and industry departments were instructed to get together on plan.

Asked at that time whether a form of property certificates would be used, Mr. Manning replied that several suggestions had been made and this might be closer than some of them.

WORK ON PLANS

So far the treasury and trade and industry departments have not gotten together on their plans, but credit members are working on them. When the Social Credit plan is now working on terms, the establishment of credit houses.

SPORT FLIER PREPARES TO HOP ATLANTIC

NEW YORK, July 5.—Landing easily at Floyd Bennett airport at 4:40 p.m. M.E.R. Hughes, millionaire sportsman, last night completed a one-stop transatlantic flight preparatory to a transatlantic hop to Paris.

His trip from Wichita, Kansas, where he spent Sunday night, required seven hours 18 minutes. Hughes left from Burbank, Cal., where he took off Sunday morning, to New York in his fast, two-motored airplane with which he has been giving new growth to the world, was 13 hours, 38 minutes.

Hughes stopped from his plane, characteristically in a polo shirt without a necktie, to say that he probably would leave for Paris in a week or two.

Government of Great Britain Grasping at Expeditious, Eden States

PLEA IS MADE BRITAIN, U.S. TO CO-OPERATE

Former Foreign Secretary
Addresses American Society in London

LONDON, July 5.—Anthony Eden, former foreign secretary, in an address last night at the annual Fourth of July dinner of the American Society in London, said the government of Great Britain is "grappling at temporary expedients" and made a plea for Anglo-American co-operation.

Mr. Eden said by co-operation he does not mean identical policies or an identical outlook. But he did mean that "these two great peoples should be working for the same objective—the approach of both to the world problems must be influenced to a large extent by the ideals and traditions which they share."

PILL CHESTNUTS
Further, Mr. Eden said his plea for closer Anglo-American co-operation was not one that would be met with indifference. He said that the United States should be asked or expected to pull British chestnuts out of the fire, although there are beginning to be quite a few chestnuts that continue to both.

"Statements of the United States have rendered invaluable service to our leadership and by their public declarations in recent years," he said.

"Believing as we both do in constitutional government, in freedom of the individual and in racial and religious tolerance, it is inevitable that our aim in world politics should be establishment of international order in a national, large and small can freely co-operate in commerce and in industry for the enrichment of international life."

KENNEDY SPEAKS
The United States ambassador, Joseph P. Kennedy, who spoke after Mr. Eden, issued an anti-fascist note, declaring, "We are finding more and more that nations are inclined to democracy and to more happiness or comfort than can be found in any other system."

Turning to business conditions, Mr. Kennedy said: "Our country is now happy to report that from its economic difficulties but only the future course of the world economy will determine whether it will be of a permanent nature. In the United States at any rate, political elements which are not so strongly in a depressing grip as in Europe, are tending to disappear."

out of the building. He telephoned the police.

MOVE IS INTERRUPTED
Constable H. Reid, Rayburne and Constables G. H. Clarke and Terry moved left to intercept the man on the route he would have to take to his taxi office.

Within a few minutes the taxi man drove past them, cursing and refusing their order to stop.

The officers went to the cab office. Garvick was in the middle of a fight with a man in his hall. When he noticed the officers Garvick fled at the corporal and Rayburne's back.

The taxi driver then retreated into the beer parlor, shouting: "I killed two of you and I'll get anybody else that comes near me."

The officers moved into the beer parlor after him, and as Garvick, standing on a chair, opened fire at them again, Clarke dropped him with a bullet in the forehead.

BOUTHE SHIELDS
Police said Garvick had bought ammunition for his .38-calibre revolver at a Prince Rupert hardware store less than an hour before the shooting.

Shortly after he had been convicted, the man said he had consulted a lawyer.

The man who was accused in the death of Acting Inspector Service last night and adjourned until next week.

Service's death ended a career in British Columbia's black-and-white police force that started in 1914, when he was a constable in the Yukon, and ended when he was killed in 1937.

He was married by his widow and five daughters, the youngest five years and the oldest 27.

Sergeant Gibson, 50, joined the provincial police in 1918 after he returned from overseas service. He was sworn in there, where he remained ever since.

Horton Smith, right above, internationally noted golfer, did not deny reports of a link romance with a fellow golfer, Miss Barbara Louise Bourne, pictured at left, but said the rumors were "a little ahead of the game." He said there would be an announcement "at the proper time."

Mr. Smith, 34, is a professional golfer, and has participated in tournament golf.

Turning to business conditions, Mr. Kennedy said: "Our country is now happy to report that from its economic difficulties but only the future course of the world economy will determine whether it will be of a permanent nature. In the United States at any rate, political elements which are not so strongly in a depressing grip as in Europe, are tending to disappear."

Health Authorities in Fight Against Cholera
Balked by Superstition

LUCKNOW, India, July 5.—Health authorities, seeking to halt a cholera epidemic that has taken more than 30,000 lives among natives and spread through scores of thousands of villages are fighting a hard battle against local beliefs.

At Sitapur, a medical unit attempting to drain the local wells was attacked by hostile villagers who thought the strangers were poisoning their water supply.

Minor riots have occurred at some places where authorities sought to stop the practice of placing bodies of cholera dead in streams or suspending them in wells, spreading contamination despite their best efforts to bring order to the situation.

Medical officials were hampered further in their efforts by the unwillingness of natives to accept the use of medicine and the unwilling need for heavy rain to wash away infected waters of the rivers.

They were confronted also by the inaccessibility of some of the hill country caught in the sweep of the epidemic, delay in reporting cases, lack of pure drinking water and the prevalence of wedding parties which last week and tend to spread infection.

The epidemic broke out during the Hindu festival of Kumbh at Hardwar in the northern United Provinces which lasted six weeks and was attended by more than 1,000,000 persons from all parts of the country, particularly the northern provinces, where the disease now is most widespread.

PRIVY COUNCIL NOW HEARING ALBERTA BILLS

North American act on the Governor General-in-Council.

"Did the Statute of Westminster make any difference at all?" questioned Lord Thackeray.

"None at all," Colonel Bizar replied.

The power of disallowance, Col. Bizar added, were valid statutory powers. There was no limit on them except the limit of time.

CLERICAL ORDER
They must be exercised within one year, Colonel Bizar cited the order-in-council of the Dominion government relating to the validity of the three Alberta bills to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The order-in-council spoke of the Alberta government's avowed object to inaugurate a "new economic order" on the theory of Social Credit. Documents submitted by the attorney general of Canada to the Supreme court included a great deal of evidence such as quotations from books, pamphlets and speeches, under which it was stated that the bills formed part of the Social Credit scheme.

"We were rather appalled at that kind of action," Colonel Bizar remarked. "Our contention is that none of this material is relevant. We have to look at the bills themselves to see what was the intention of the legislature, not at statements made by Major Douglas in his book."

PROVISIONS OUTLINED
Colonel Bizar outlined the provisions of the three Alberta bills. On the bill respecting taxation of banks, Colonel Bizar outlined provisions for an annual tax of the major of one per cent on the total capital and a tax of one per cent on the reserve fund of undivided profits.

"Is that on the whole capital of the bank, whether in the province or not?" asked Lord Macmillan.

"On the whole capital of the bank," he replied.

Colonel Bizar contended an improper assumption of fact had been made with regard to the prohibition of this tax. He read provisions of the bill to amend and consolidate the credits of Alberta regulation act.

MONETIZING CREDIT
Whereas credit is the basis of all wealth, whereas the extent whereof property rights in the province may be enjoyed depends on the principles governing the monetization of credit, Lord Macmillan questioned.

Is there any definition of monetization of credit? The question raised a smile.

"No," Colonel Bizar inquired. "The first definition of the bill, counsel for the government, is in the term used in the B.N.A. Act. But the supreme court held this was insufficient to include."

"If that is so there is nothing more to be said," Colonel Bizar added. But he submitted the scope of the bill was narrow and did not include the term used in the B.N.A. Act.

At the moment, Colonel Bizar continued, there was no way of operating the bill as a new authority was set up to operate it.

LITTLE DOUBT
"If on a technical point," observed Lord Macmillan, "whether this bill ought to entertain an appeal, I am going to have the bill cannot operate."

"We admit that difficulty," Colonel Bizar said.

"We are loath to shirk any one of our duties," he said, "but I have no doubt about it," Lord Macmillan added.

Dealing specifically with the bank taxation, Colonel Bizar submitted its terms were sound and within the limits of the provincial legislature. The weight of the province, he said, was on the Governor-General-in-Council to decide, not for the courts, with possible exception of the legislation proving to be too onerous for the banks to carry.

"Then it might become a question for the courts and be considered grounds for invalidation."

REASONS FOR APPEAL
Colonel Bizar set forth the following reasons for appeal:

"Because the terms and effect of a legislative measure is to be ascertained by an examination of the actual provisions and it is only when expressions used in it are ambiguous or impugned that an issue may be made to extraneous matters."

"Because the competence of a provincial legislature constituted under the British North America act, 1876, to pass a statute in general terms cannot vary from province to province or from time to time."

"Because a statute expressed in unambiguous and precise terms cannot properly be held invalid on the grounds that another statute of the same legislature is invalid and that a common intention underlies both."

NOT HELD INVALID

Canadian Mining Man Enters Parliament in Bahamas Island Home

NASSAU, Bahamas, July 5.—Harry Oakes, who struck it rich in Canada after years of mining in Yukon, Alaska, the Philippines, Australia and New Zealand, made his entry Monday into the political life of the Bahamas, the group of 30 inhabited islands forming an archipelago of the British West Indies.

Oakes became one of the 20 members of the Bahamas house of assembly, a young negro, Milo Butler, 538, was elected as a by-election for the western district of Nassau.

The by-election was made necessary by the death of Sir Alfred P. Adderley to the upper house of the Bahamas parliament.

Oakes, who became wealthy after striking the Tough Oakes property and the first claim on the island, the Lake Shore Gold mine in Northern Ontario, has distinguished himself as a shrewd investor with marked generosity since he made Nassau his home.

Upon his arrival in the Bahamas Oakes noted the unemployment situation was acute. He gave $5,000 to Governor Sir Bode Clifford to alleviate the situation.

He noted that transport facilities on the islands were poor, and he had buses specially built in England and brought to the islands. He also maintained a fleet of airplanes at Nassau, which were used for emergency sea cases and other purposes.

MAN WILLING SELL HIS EYE TO BUY LIMB

MONTREAL, July 5.—Thirty-year-old Cyril Maloney, unemployed for three years, is willing to sell his right eye so he can buy an artificial leg.

Maloney figures he can get along with only one eye, but finds it troublesome to walk with only one eye.

Maloney says he got the idea when he read that Mr. Middleton, 538, was elected as a by-election for the western district of Nassau.

The by-election was made necessary by the death of Sir Alfred P. Adderley to the upper house of the Bahamas parliament.

Oakes, who became wealthy after striking the Tough Oakes property and the first claim on the island, the Lake Shore Gold mine in Northern Ontario, has distinguished himself as a shrewd investor with marked generosity since he made Nassau his home.

Upon his arrival in the Bahamas Oakes noted the unemployment situation was acute. He gave $5,000 to Governor Sir Bode Clifford to alleviate the situation.

He noted that transport facilities on the islands were poor, and he had buses specially built in England and brought to the islands. He also maintained a fleet of airplanes at Nassau, which were used for emergency sea cases and other purposes.

CANADIAN CORPS PROTESTS USING FLAMING TORCH

TORONTO, July 5.—Members of the Canadian Corps Association emphatically protest the decision of the National Youth Party to adopt the flaming torch as its emblem.

Major G. B. M. Dingle, national president of the Canadian Corps Association, said today: "He was referring to the announcement of Adrian Aron, president of the National Youth Party, that the flaming torch was to be the emblem of the Canadian Corps Association and before the end of the month it will be worn by more than 100,000 war veterans at the corps reunion in Toronto."

"The flaming torch can never and will never stand for Fascism, or a Fascist organization in the Dominion."

WHEAT ACREAGE OF ARGENTINE IS INCREASING

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Prospects of a world wheat crop this year for exceeding normal levels are no different to growers of the grain in the southern hemisphere.

The United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported Monday that the wheat acreage in Argentina is progressing rapidly and that increases are in prospect in Australia and Argentina. The acreage in the latter country may be 13 per cent greater than last year's.

Meanwhile, harvest of this year's United States wheat crop progressed into northern Kansas and Missouri.

It is reported that the most dangerous hours on a highway are between 7 and 8 o'clock at night.

Restoring The Reserves

The weather over the week-end distributed its favors with impartiality. From end to end the province was given a thorough drenching. Few areas were missed, and in some the precipitation was extremely heavy. Edmonton, for example, received more than an inch of rain in twenty-four hours; which according to a previous calculation would work out at about 700,000,000 gallons.

In the northern districts the downpour was welcome as an aid in checking the forest fires which have been raging for some weeks, while there and elsewhere it supplied moisture which the crops were in need of. In other parts, such as in the south, it was the character of a steady drizzle, it will be of more than temporary value, for in city gardens the water soaked deeply into the soil and has largely replaced the reserve supply of moisture so heavily drawn upon in the dry seasons.

If one of three or four well-known things does not happen before harvest time this should be a crop year in terms of the whole cultivated area of the province.

By Order or Without Orders?

Prime Minister Chamberlain is "not satisfied" with Franco's explanation that his bombing policy is a necessary evil. It is not possible he made deliberate attacks on British ships. The story will not go down, either, with the sailors who, according to press despatches, were wounded by machine-gun bullets on the decks of some of the vessels.

In the other theatre of wholesale assassination, the Japanese official spokesman seems to have run out of excuses. He now lists the achievements of the airman in China to be interpreted as the pictures of dead civilians and ruined residential cities may suggest.

What is plain is that in both Spain and China the mass killing of civilians is a part of calculated military tactics, or the airman simply become a law unto themselves once they get out of sight of the bombers. Whichever is the case, the bombers are showing that, more than any other branch of military operations, air operations will have to be brought under control by international agreement if there is to remain any semblance of mercy or civility in war.

As a weapon against armed force on land or sea the effectiveness of the airplane has been overrated. But as an instrument for murdering non-combatants and wrecking non-fortified cities it is without compare. To tolerate its unregulated use would be to sanction the modernized methods of Attila.

No Case for "Unification"

If anyone supposed railway amalgamation could be made popular, or even palatable to the public, by calling it "unification," he has good reason to know that supposition was a delusion. Since the close of the war there has hardly been a subject on which vocal public opinion is so nearly unanimous. Aside from its government whose self-interest was obvious, and three or four newspapers whose opinions on a financial issue can be predicted, there has been scarcely a voice raised in support of the merger idea. And on the other side there has been a vigorous and sustained fire of criticism from newspapers of all shades of politics from Victoria to Halifax as the Senate inquiry has proceeded.

It may be of course that in this instance the minority, not the majority, reflected the thinking of the public. But that is not probable. For the amalgamationists have not made out a case. They have done worse; they have made clear that from the public standpoint there is no case to be made out for unification.

All the plan amounts to is a proposal to tear up 5,000 miles of railway tracks, cancel trains, close stations, and fire railways. This program would accomplish nothing that is publicly desirable, in return for reduced railway service and a fresh accession to the ranks of the unemployed. It could be justified only on the assumption that Canada is a "finished" country, that there is no longer need to encourage pioneering effort, the development of frontier resources and the production of wealth in presently unproductive areas.

Nobody believes that to be the case. The unifiers do not pretend to believe it. In refusing to advance this argument they throw away the whole case for amalgamation as expedient public policy. Because unless we have reached the end of settlement, development and broader production the railways are needed and will be needed, and the present services are vital.

Where economy can be effected without blocking the expansion of production and trade, this can be done as well by co-operation as by unification of management. In the latter, and even where such economies can be effected by co-operation there is the offsetting probability that what the railways "saved" the taxpayers would have to make up in relief money and the cost of relief work.

The general question of hearings before the Senate committee has been to show that all the railways need is more traffic; which the country will supply if monetary policies and trade policies and employment policies are adjusted to the end of encouraging development.

Editorial Notes

It is not too early to note that Edmonton's Summer Fair opens a week from next Monday.

Having decisively disapproved Mr. Bennett's policies at the polls three years ago, the public will not be equal to approving the kindly things said of him in the closing hours of the parliamentary session by Prime Minister King and others not of the Conservative household of faith. Mr. Bennett's great talents were his own, to be used as he saw fit. He gave them without stint to the service of the country as he saw the equal opportunity as he believed to be for the general welfare. His judgment was mistaken, but his sincerity and zeal are beyond question.

Mr. Stevens' Return

That was a graceful tribute which the Conservatives of Manoeuvre-Roumont, a French-Canadian industrial community on Montreal Island, paid to Mr. H. Stevens in naming him to be their delegate to the National Convention. It will be a source of satisfaction to his old friends that Mr. Stevens has been named and that he has accepted the nomination.

Harry Stevens was always a good Conservative but not a very good one. When he left the party three years ago he was moved by no feeling against Conservatism but by a conviction that the party had lost its identity and its policies were out of touch with the times. He was a new economic median. But while he split with his old friends, he retained their respect and goodwill. If he had a fault, it was impudence. And now he has paid for that impudence.

It is good to know that the years have worked to bring Mr. Stevens and his old party together again. The wilderness is out for the wanderer, and the wanderer has followed his intention to return. It will be better for both. The Conservative party is better for the return of Mr. Stevens, and Mr. Stevens is better for the return of the Conservative party. The return of Mr. Stevens is a source of satisfaction to his old friends, and the return of the Conservative party is a source of satisfaction to Mr. Stevens. The return of Mr. Stevens is a source of satisfaction to his old friends, and the return of the Conservative party is a source of satisfaction to Mr. Stevens. The return of Mr. Stevens is a source of satisfaction to his old friends, and the return of the Conservative party is a source of satisfaction to Mr. Stevens.

Education and Jobs

It already seems a lot too early to get diplomas from the University. Lowering the standard still further would be a serious mistake. Lads leaving the university, in spite of their diplomas, are often not sufficiently instructed to make a way for themselves in professions that have become overcrowded. A proof of this is the difficulty that is found in absorbing them in foreign firms here, as the Egyptian government wants them to be. More money spent on primary education and less on higher education—by the introduction of severer examination standards which would lessen the entries to these institutions—might do a lot toward decreasing the unemployment, which is rapidly becoming one of Egypt's major problems.—The Sphinx, Cairo.

A New U. S. National Park

The creation of the Olympic National Park, in the extreme northwest corner of the United States, was agreed to by the House of Representatives. Mrs. C. N. Edge, chairman of the Emergency Conservation Committee, announced. "The passage of the third Wallgren Bill concludes our four-year campaign to preserve permanently a substantial part of America's vastest forest wilderness," she said.

The park will contain 892,200 acres, including high peaks, glaciers, and lakes, as well as the rugged Douglas fir spruce hemlock and cedar towering two hundred to three hundred feet above the forest floor. Most of the range lies in the Olympic National Forest, which the park, where these magnificent animals will be protected against further slaughter.

This Century Has Mined Three-Fifths of World's Gold

When discussing gold, its production and price probabilities, it is interesting to note that of the world's total gold supply no less than 61.20 per cent has been produced in the 36 years, 1901 to 1937, according to The Northern Miner's calculations. This has been a busy generation when it comes to the mining of gold. It might seem that we have overdone it. Yet we feel quite sure that the world would not be able to do without the gold of the world's total turnover of iron, copper, lead, and zinc and other metals of this high-speed mechanical age has been produced in the same period. In about the same time, gold has been necessary to finance, or lubricate, the trade and activity of this modern age.

Folks who abandoned the old gold standard nearly seven years ago, this paper forecasts a tremendous increase in gold mining and expects that the mass of new metal could be employed by the world to bring about a widely expanding and long-lasting period of intense production of all goods. It believed that the standard of gold for everyone on the globe would be raised. We must confess that the world has been very clumsy and timid in handling of nature's yellow gift. The gold standard has been the order of three steps forward and two back. However, man has always striven upward and eventually has pushed aside those who would keep him down. He has made his personal aggrandizement. We can confidently hope that some day the great supplies of money-metal will be used for the benefit of the common man of a property which will touch everybody.

Figures used by The Northern Miner in making up the above record are taken from the 1937 year-end report of the Bank of Montreal. This year was believed to be in civilized excavation 3,000,000 ounces. This amount increased rapidly following the discovery and exploitation of the American West. The production in the years 1901 to 1937 amounted to 458,582,649 ounces, a total of 458,582,649 ounces, before this generation got going. The estimated output of the world in 1937 inclusive is placed at 773,931,188 ounces, a figure which is 61.20 per cent of 1,262,592,537 ounces, the world's estimated mine gold to the end of 1937. Since the abandonment of the British gold standard there was produced in the years 1901 to 1937 the sum of 174,213,536 ounces of gold. In these last years, the world's mine has produced 13.79 per cent of the world's known gold output—Northern Miner, July 3, 1938.

Housing in the West

From the Daily Bulletin of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics

In urban localities of the Prairie Provinces 55 per cent of the population live in single-family dwellings. The number of single-family dwellings showed very little increase during the interval between 1901 and 1926. In urban Manitoba the number rose from 59,559 in 1901 to 51,396 in 1926. In the urban localities of Saskatchewan the number increased from 57,750 in 1901 to 59,923 in 1926, while the urban areas of Alberta showed a more marked gain from 55,347 in 1901 to 58,360 in 1926, or about five per cent.

It is interesting to note that the number of all single-family dwellings in urban Manitoba are found in urban areas of 1,669 population and in rural areas of 1,669 population. In Saskatchewan the percentage in urban areas of 1,000 population and more are 48 and 47, respectively. Approximately 75 per cent of the single-family dwellings in Manitoba are in urban areas. In Saskatchewan and 68 per cent in urban Alberta in localities of 1,000 population and over.

According to the census of 1926, single-family dwellings counts as one dwelling. Adding the occupied dwellings in apartments, room, flats and tenements, the total number of dwellings in urban Manitoba at the 1926 census, the corresponding figures for Saskatchewan and Alberta were 64,355 and 69,293, respectively. The number of urban households in Manitoba in 1926 was 15,564, in Saskatchewan 13,956, and in Alberta 13,956. The number of single-family dwellings in the three provinces combined, Rural households numbered 85,496 in Manitoba, 139,075 in Saskatchewan and 112,116 in Alberta at the 1926 census.

It is significant that the number of households in the Prairie Provinces in 1926 was 1,000,000. The number of dwellings in the urban areas, the number living in dwellings in urban localities of Manitoba was 51,396 in 1926, in Saskatchewan 59,923 in 1926, and in Alberta 58,360 in 1926. The number of households in the urban areas of the three provinces combined, Rural households numbered 85,496 in Manitoba, 139,075 in Saskatchewan and 112,116 in Alberta at the 1926 census.

On the other hand, households living in rural dwellings numbered 1,000,000 in 1926. The number of tenant households in the

Your Health

DR. FRANK MCCOY

Before undertaking treatment for deafness of the catarrhal type it is a good plan to have the hearing tested to find out how much of a loss has occurred. Some physicians are equipped to make scientific tests of the hearing by using a special machine which acts upon a principle similar to that of the phonograph. In my private practice, such tests have given all the cases of the deafness I find there has occurred a partial loss of hearing without the patient being aware of it, as this loss may take place so gradually that the patient does not realize he is not hearing as acutely as formerly. In this way, many cases of approaching deafness are uncovered before complete loss takes place.

The earlier the treatment is started the better; but do not give up hope even if deafness has been present for a long time in your own case, as I have seen many instances where it has been possible to bring about considerable improvement even in the advanced cases.

I do not promise a complete cure in all cases of deafness, for when there has been any destruction of the nerve, or if certain changes have taken place within the ear, there is little hope. Fortunately, these cases are comparatively few, and in most cases of deafness the inability to hear is due to catarrh in which case a great majority of these patients are cured. The correct catarrh with the result that the hearing returns completely, or else it returns enough so that the patient is able to carry on his normal activities. It is generally difficult to predict in advance how much improvement will be gained, as a great deal depends upon how the patient responds to treatment.

There are several local treatments which may be used in an effort to help the patient to hear better. Massage of the external ear, the use of the head and neck may be of benefit through bringing about better lymphatic drainage. Massage treatment given to the drum membrane may bring temporary relief. Another method of treatment used with good results is called "Finger Surgery." The doctor who originated this treatment called it this name because of the use of the fingers in freeing the Eustachian tubes of clogging mucus and at the same time in bringing about a better nerve and blood supply to the parts treated.

I have used a similar method in my practice and find it secures good results in many cases. After a course of treatment, the patient may find that his hearing has been lost or in restoring part of it, but it has been my experience that in order to secure the best results, the patient should use the fasting and dieting treatment as well.

When local treatments bring temporary relief, a very helpful sign and the patient should persevere with both the local and constitutional treatment until he finds out how far the hearing may be restored. I advise everyone troubled with defective hearing to try the methods before giving up hope of overcoming the deafness.

Local treatment given to the Eustachian tubes which consists of blowing them out, is often used by itself and the patient may find that results last for a short time and that as soon as the tubes again fill up with mucus the hearing is lost and the treatments must be repeated. This difficulty is due to the constitutional causes being neglected with the consequence that the basic catarrhal cause continues to operate. The combination of general treatment to get rid of the catarrh with local treatment to the Eustachian tubes is the only way I have ever found to secure lasting relief from deafness.

QUESTION: B. H. writes: "I am writing to ask the cause of the lower part of the back swelling on the right side. That part below the waist is very sore and the hearing is lost and the treatments must be repeated. This difficulty is due to the constitutional causes being neglected with the consequence that the basic catarrhal cause continues to operate. The combination of general treatment to get rid of the catarrh with local treatment to the Eustachian tubes is the only way I have ever found to secure lasting relief from deafness."

HOLDUP HOME MOON

By EDWIN RUTT

CAST OF CHARACTERS: JOSEPH SANDHAM, hero, who thought he was in the line of duty; KELLY, SHERIFF, heroine, who thought she was in the line of duty; ED THE WEASEL, antagonist, who thought he was in the line of duty; and a number of other persons who thought they were in the line of duty.

SYNOPSIS: Joe Sandham, Ed the Weasel and Kelly, who thought they were in the line of duty, were in the line of duty.

CHAPTER IX

YES, under cover of darkness, Mr. Sandham moved into action. First his left hand stole surreptitiously into his inside coat pocket, while his right continued to guide the car. From the pocket he drew a small oblong object which he placed in his lap. Then the hand went back into the pockets and came out with a smaller, thinner object. After that, for the space of five minutes, both hands rested unobtrusively on the wheel.

In the back of the car the head of Ed the Weasel nodded slightly. He was by no means asleep, but the steady purr of the motor had lulled his restlessness. Joe half-turned in his seat and stole a look at him out of the corner of his eye. "Getting sleepy?" he asked. "No," said the Weasel, "I'm just thinking about the future."

Tony's Willingness Brings High Ranking

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The National Boxing Association Monday ranked Tony Galento as number one heavyweight, next to champion Joe Louis.

Galento's rating was based on his "consistent knockout wins and the fact that he is willing and anxious to meet Joe Louis or any other heavyweight, Baez or Farr preferred," according to Harvey L. Miller, chairman of the ratings committee for the N.B.A.

Other heavyweights were ranked in the following order: Max Baer, Tommy Farr of Wales, Bob Pastor, Max Schmeling of Germany, Clarence Ballard, Renee Tully, Clarence (Red) Burman, Al McCoy of Montreal, and Bobson and Nathan Mann.

Belmonts, Cardinals Tangle Renfrew Tonight

"Who has the best club in the senior ball league? Why Belmonts have. There is no question about that at all." Twa young lad named Lorne Harney chortling away to your baseball scribe as he dodged ran drape while wandering down Jasper Avenue last night. "Just wait till we meet those Cardinals Tuesday night and no one else will have any doubt about it either."

When one very, very doubtful sports writer pointed out that Belmonts were only in their third year, Mr. Harney's little boy admitted that the club hadn't been clicking so very well but promptly added that they were all set to start a "mighty impressive winning streak."

THUMPED AROUNDS

"Didn't we knock over Arrow last week? And aren't Arrow the first place club in the league?" Arrow receiving a hearty "yes" to both questions the fiery Belmont manager added a curt, "Well, figure it out for yourself," then started to pound down 101 street as to come hurrying back with the announcement that Eddie Schaefer would start on the mound for the North Edmonton game.

LOOMS BIG

And it should prove one of the best and most bitterly fought scraps seen at Renfrew Park. It is a mighty long time for both clubs to play plenty at the same time. Ralph Morgan's Cardinals will place them at the top of the heap and Arrow Blues, while a win for Belmonts will leave Cardinals in third place and boost Harney's men within a few percentage points of the leading Blue Boys.

Belmonts have won two of their three encounters with Cardinals, but the Army and Navy game plan to try to up the series tonight. The game will start at Renfrew Park at 8:30 p.m.
